A short History of Whitehill School

In 1883 the Glasgow School Board acquired Dennistoun Academy, the private school that had been erected earlier on the site. It was renamed Whitehill Public School for Girls but soon demolished and replaced by a larger building opened in 1891 by John Neilson Cuthbertson, the chairman of the Board.

Whitehill Public School's first headmaster was James Henderson, previously the head of Thomson Street Public School. His aversion to turning away pupils meant that Whitehill became one of the most overcrowded schools in the city. Around 1902 it became a Higher Grade School and it stepped up to full secondary status in 1921. In 1967 it became a comprehensive school and in 1977 pupils were moved to the new Whitehill Secondary School on Onslow Drive, built on a site which had belonged to Golfhill Cricket Club.

Reflecting the post-war optimism in society, the school flourished in the decades following the Second World War and ranked highly amongst city schools for both academic and sporting achievement. Subsequently, it had to face the challenges posed by the decline in economic activity and a fall in the population in its catchment area.

Sir David Anderson, Director of the Royal College of Science and Technology, up to the time it became Strathclyde University; Sir Herbert Duthie; surgeon and Provost of University of Wales College of Medicine; Christian James Fordyce, Professor of Humanity, University of Glasgow; Rikki Fulton, actor and, author; Alistair Gray, artist, author and playwright; journalists and authors Jack House and Robert Kernohan; Adam McNaughton, singer and song writer; Actors Bill Patterson and Dorothy Paul; Sir William Weipers, who was instrumental in the establishment of the modern veterinary school at Glasgow University, are amongst the famous Glaswegians who attended the school.

There are many, many more former pupils who have had distinguished careers in education, medicine, business, engineering, the kirk and the services, in Scotland and the wider world.

Only a portion of red sandstone school wall remains in Whitehill Street, but the war memorial commemorating the former pupils who died in two World Wars is now incorporated in the new building in Onslow drive. (The names of those who died and a photograph of the memorial can be found on The Scottish Military Research Group - Commemorations Project website under Whitehill School)

The story of the Former Pupils Club

The following text is a summary of various sources notes, but is primarily drawn from a published article by Dr. Andrew S. Barr in the 1960's.

It began one night in 1922, when Andrew Martin and Howard Garvan spent an evening with Willie Edgar at New Cumnock where he had just started his medical practice, missed the last train home and had to wait for the milk train at 4.30am. Three old school pals who sat talking through the night were of the generation who had just left school when the First World War broke out in 1914. For five years, they been scattered abroad in the Army, Navy and Royal Flying Corps. They wondered what had happened to their old school friends and thought it would be wonderful if they could gather together again. After much more talk, the idea of a "get together of old pals" was born.

The first dinner was held in February 1923 at the Grand Hotel in Glasgow, a six course meal including coffee for the princely sum of seven shillings, or 35 pence in today's coinage. Thirty seven gentlemen attended (it was men only for many years). The group grew in size with as many as 180 attending future dinners.

Parallel with the dinner club, the other branches of the FP Club developed various sport teams including the Rugby, Football and Hockey teams. The Whitehill FP football team, founded in 1903, is particularly honoured as one of the original members the Scottish Amateur Football Association. Whitehill FP entered the first ever Scottish Amateur Cup competition in 1910. Remarkably two of those originating teams, Whitehill FP and Vale of Atholl are still in existence and playing today.

The FP Rugby team was founded in 1924 and continued to play for the following seven decades until disbanding in 1989 when many players went on to play at St Aloysius FP situated out on Cumbernauld Road.

The FP club continues today, we continue to work to attract new members and look forward to the centenary of the "dinner club" in 2023. For more details of the Club visit our website at <http://whitehillfp.org/>
